NOTE FOR: Director of Central Intelligence

Bill:

Carl Duckett has informed me of his conversation on Saturday with Donald Rumsfeld and his subsequent briefing of you on the security matters raised by Rumsfeld.

Before any definitive decision is made on how to cope with the problem, I would suggest that a conversation among yourself, Carl Duckett, Charlie Kane, and myself is in order. There are in existence some security relations, perhaps unknown to Carl and to you. Secondly, there are various options as to how we can interface a senior security officer with the White House, and we believe you should be made aware of them.
